New Programs Address a Variety of Needs

As the fall semester began, Schreiner introduced four new programs and resources.

New Writing Center Available To All

Students with writing issues have a new resource available beginning Fall 2004 that offers support for writers at all levels of experience and at any stage of the writing process. Whether they need help with getting started on a project, drafting their initial ideas, revising and improving their work, researching supporting arguments and data, proofreading and editing or working on improving their overall approach to writing, trained peer writing tutors are available either by appointment or on a walk-in basis.

The Writing Center is housed in AC Schreiner Hall, where student/faculty volunteers have been busy all summer painting, cleaning and generally making the environment comfortable and efficient. The message to students: “Don’t wait till the last minute. Come early and visit often — the ability to communicate clearly in writing will have an amazing positive effect on your life and career.” For more information contact English instructor Elizabeth MacCrossan at 792-2407 or by e-mail at eamaccrossan@schreiner.edu

Center For Innovative Learning

Associate Professor of English and Communication Dr. William Woods notes that “Learning by heart takes many different approaches; there is no ‘one size fits all’ when it comes to learning.” Dr. Woods brings conviction and enthusiasm to his new role as director of the Center for Innovative Learning, a program that will promote classroom techniques to ensure that all kinds of learners are supported in every class taught at Schreiner University.

The brainchild of Dr. Kathleen Hudson and initially funded by Jeanne Slobod, the Center will also support collaborative research and scholarship in diverse areas as well as promoting interdisciplinary activities for the benefit of students, campus and community. For information contact Dr. Woods by e-mail at wwwwoods@schreiner.edu

President’s Perspective

By Dr. Tim Summerlin

I hope you enjoy the story on the back cover about the Telly Finalist Award won by the “Wet Kiss” television ad created for Schreiner’s marketing campaign. This kind of promotion is important when you are determined to elevate name recognition, but one of the things we are reminding ourselves on campus is that marketing is much more than promotion. Award-winning advertising doesn’t mean much unless you can deliver on your promise — in our case, excellent teaching, an attractive environment, and real value for our students and their families.

These thoughts have been on my mind lately with regard to location in particular. We are fortunate to be located in the Hill Country. But beyond that, we are blessed in being able to bring prospective students to a remarkable campus. Many people are responsible for that blessing.

Management Information Systems

Imagine a new job seeker’s marketability upon graduating with a Schreiner degree in Information Systems and certification as a Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer (MCSE). The opportunities for graduates with these credentials are exciting and far-ranging.

The MIS program provides detailed preparatory training for the MCSE industry certification examinations. Successful industry certification requires that the student pass a total of seven examinations. This translates into seven different courses (over 4 years) offered by the program.

What makes this program especially valuable is that in a four year period the Schreiner student can earn a college degree in MIS and also become certified as a Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer. For information contact David Teneyuca at 830-792-2458 or by e-mail at dteneyuca@schreiner.edu

Greystone Offers Military Academy Preparation

Greystone at Schreiner is a military academy preparatory institution designed by academy graduates, faculty and staff specifically for students reapplying to the U.S. Naval Academy, Army Academy, Air Force Academy, Coast Guard Academy or Merchant Marine Academy. “Greystone offers the best mix of specialized college-level academics, athletic participation, physical fitness and character development to provide a total academy preparatory program for deserving academy-bound students.”

This institution provides an updated and improved approach to traditional academy preparatory education. What makes the Greystone program is the college-level curriculum. The Greystone program is specifically designed to increase the competitiveness of academy hopefuls and prepare them for the academic challenges and physical rigors of their academy first year. Perspective

They start with plant director Dale Myers, who has a real passion not only for how facilities operate, but also how a place looks. Summer is the season for special attention to those kinds of things, because the comparative emptiness of the campus allows the staff to make improvements indoors and out.

For example, Darrell Jarvis and Wes Gardner completely repainted all apartments in three units at Pecan Grove, plus portions of other units—a massive undertaking. Another crew has repainted the Weir interior. Construction manager Milton Wilson and staff have ridden herd on the final stages of our Moody Science Building renovation and begun our much-needed maintenance facilities. Custodial crews have thoroughly cleaned all residence halls as summer camps made them available.

Meanwhile, outdoors, the grounds crew, under the leadership of James Whetstone, has teamed up with early summer rain to produce a campus we are proud to show to prospects. Deb Zugai and Bob Arnold have transformed a number of spaces on campus—around Weir, Logan Library and Moody Science—with their landscaping art. Sometimes we think of such improvements as cosmetic, but just as we want our homes to be attractive expressions of ourselves, so do our university, which is the home for many of us for much of the year.

I love to take a slow drive around campus early in the morning just to savor what these folks and all their colleagues have done to provide value to Schreiner students in shaping such a lovely place for learning. Here’s to those who make that tour so pleasant!

Four to join Schreiner’s Distinguished Faculty

The first director of Schreiner University’s Center for Global Studies, Dr. Ron Hatchett, has the right stuff to head this sophisticated teaching resource. With an academic and government service career that encompasses a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin, teaching, research, military intelligence, negotiating, and representing the U.S. in high level sensitive positions, Dr. Hatchett brings a world of experience to his new teaching duties at Schreiner. His academic specialties include foreign policy, European Studies and Middle Eastern Affairs.

Dr. Marye C. Tharp brings impressive multilingual accomplishments in teaching, publishing and research in the fields of marketing and communications to the Schreiner University family this fall as associate professor of business. She has a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin in marketing, international business and Latin American Studies. Dr. Tharp’s range of experience in diverse environments and her professional insights into the intricacies of designing effective marketing communications will add significant depth to business studies at Schreiner.

Dr. George Petrie, CPA comes to Schreiner from Southern University at New Orleans where he taught accounting, authored numerous professional papers, and served as chairperson of the department from 1999-2003. An early scholar studying computerization in the accounting profession, Dr. Petrie received his Ph.D. from Louisiana State University. Dr. Petrie will serve as visiting associate professor of professional studies and will help to bring accounting alive for business students.

Dr. Carole Errett has taught everyone from pre-schoolers through college students, and brings an enthusiasm complemented by broad experience to her new teaching and staff duties at Schreiner. Dr. Errett will serve the Schreiner community as both assistant professor of education and director of teacher education. Prior to Schreiner, Dr. Errett’s diverse career has included a 2003 Ph.D. in higher education administration from UT Austin and a master’s in criminal justice from UT-Tyler.

Moody Science Building Dedication Oct. 21

After a year and nearly $2 million, renovation of the Moody Science Building is complete and science, math and exercise science students are enjoying the improvements.

A dedication event is scheduled for October 21 to honor those who have supported the project. Major contributors include: the Dietert Family, Alta and Bill Foster, the Brown Foundation, The Houston Endowment, Hal and Charlie Peterson Foundation, Kathryn Schutts, First Presbyterian Church of Fort Worth, Demmie Mayfield and James and Estela Avery.

An open house will be held at the dedication event. The renovation project was designed by Lopez Salas Architects, Inc. and built by Boyle Construction of San Antonio.

Schreiner Announces HCCF Leadership

Schreiner University has announced that two prominent Kerrville business professionals have accepted the challenge of heading the Hill Country College Fund campaign for 2004-05. Marianne Wofford, vice president and financial advisor at Morgan Stanley and Sue Steele, public relations officer at Bank of the Hills, will serve as co-leaders in this critical campaign.

Kerrville philanthropist and community leader Kenneth Cailloux will serve as honorary chairperson for the drive.

In addition to Wofford, Steele and Cailloux, the HCCF drive will be led by Mike Hunter, Advanced Gifts Division; Bob Waller, Business Division; Berna Jean Mattheis, Community Division; and Judy Ferguson, University Division.

The Hill Country College Fund provides need-based tuition assistance grants to young people from Kerr and surrounding counties so they can attend Schreiner University. HCCF helps over 250 students each year with HCCF grants that average $2,000. Since 1977 the Fund has given nearly $7 million in grants to deserving students, many of whom remain in the Hill Country after graduation, raising their own families and contributing immeasurably to the well-being of their communities.

Amanda Rees is an HCCF scholarship recipient who needed help to attend Schreiner. “I was away at school my freshman year when I was told that my dad was very sick and needed a heart transplant. So I knew without being asked that I needed to come home, and I did.

“Of course I thought that my college career was over, at least for a while. But then I looked into Schreiner and found out that I could get this amazing financial assistance. Thank goodness I didn’t have to choose between getting an education and helping my family.”

“I plan to go on to graduate school in finance and then get a position in a transplant center where I can use my education and life experience in helping others the way I have been helped. I thank God for the kind people who work so hard for the benefit of young people like me. I could not have come this far without them.”

If you are interested in helping a Schreiner student like Amanda, you can contact Mignonne Frantzen, Schreiner’s associate director of annual giving at 830-792-7208 for more information.

History Comes to Life at Schreiner

Whoever the individual, and whatever your relationship to them, if they meet the standards for acceptance as either a Distinguished Alumnus or a Hall of Honor Athlete, your nomination will be welcome.

Please read the standards for acceptance on the enclosed nomination form — and let us know who you choose.
