

Theater

For more information
contact:

Dr. Claudia Sullivan

Professor of Theater
Schreiner University
2100 Memorial Blvd.
Kerrville, TX 78028
830-792-7401
csullivan@schreiner.edu

Mr. Derek Horton

Instructor of Theatre
dhorton@schreiner.edu
830-792-7276

Courses:

Theater Rehearsal and Performance
Movement for the Theater
Introduction to the Theater
Acting
Principles of Theatrical
Design
Theater History
Creative Drama for Young
Audiences
Studies in Shakespeare
Playwriting
Dramatic Literature
Advanced Studies in Technical Theater
Advanced Studies in Theater
Performance
Directed Study in Theater
Internship in Theater

Curriculum

The B.A. in Theatre includes coursework in technical theatre, acting, theatre history, playwrighting, Shakespeare and dramatic literature, and advanced performance techniques. Coursework is augmented with performances each semester in which students may direct, perform, and/or work in technical areas. Students pursuing this degree will be trained in dramatic criticism and theory, theatre history, and performance techniques that will prepare the student for further study in graduate programs and/or performance. The training available at Schreiner University is mainly 'hands on' and students are encouraged to participate in as many aspects of theatre performance as possible. Schreiner theatre students learn by doing and by participating in a program that allows them to be mentored in technical and performance techniques.

After Graduation

Graduates in Theatre are qualified to work in community theatre, children's theatres, regional theatres, and professional theatres. Graduates are also encouraged to apply and attend graduate programs in theatre for further study, especially if they desire to teach or write in the areas of dramatic theory and criticism.

Enhanced Learning Opportunities

As with any professional program, the classroom and performance aspects of a B.A. in theatre is enhanced by experience in related performance venues within the Hill Country area. Students in theatre may intern at Playhouse 2000 and the Kathleen Cailloux Performing Arts Theatre, and the Point Theatre in Ingram, Texas. Students choosing to perform internships at the off campus venues will work in a variety of theatre-related activities. Experiences may include; theatre management, performance, stage management, technical areas (lighting, sound, props, etc.), and box office management.

Schreiner's Hanzen Fine Arts Theater averages four productions per year (two per semester), each rendering students an outlet to develop their acting and technical abilities within an intimate setting with a seating capacity of 75-100.