Mountaineer Men's Golf

Despite being at a competitive disadvantage from the first tee box with only a four-man roster, the golf team members have represented the university to the best of their abilities. "These men are making the best of a difficult situation and we can't ask for more than that," says new head golf coach and athletic director Ron Macosko. "We will build upon what we have this year and we will continue to improve," Macosko said. "What is most impressive is that three of the four men's grades earned them spots on the President's List in the fall."

Golf team members were: Matthew Casey, Josh Horn, Cody Lannom and Bobby Villcheck.
